Dear Ms. Zierhut,

Robert Vardeman told me you are without a Libran in your zodiac of short stories. A balance much be achieved!

No experiment in nature vs. nurture is complete without the careful weighing of the Libra. Only on a beautiful planet ruled by priests and priestesses dedicated to an Aphrodite-type diety could the Libran nature find full expression. Indeed, it seems to me the "philosophers" conducting this experiment must have Libra in ascendant since they investigate the question so thoroughly.

Balance and justice are cardinal virtues to a Libran but let us not forget their darker side -- stagnation and fatalism. Surely these two sets of opposites are only a subtle version of the fundamental question intriguing our bold experimenters.

With typical Libran energy, I'm anxious to participate with the philosophers in their quest for a solution to their debate. Like the air which rules me, the twists and turns I present to them contain many surprises along with a harvest of answers.

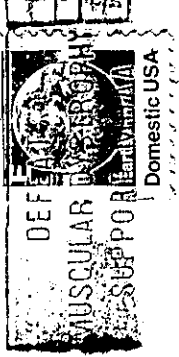

Sincerely,

Lou Liberty
